Activities Under Reap & Water Bank Programs Terminated

WASHINGTON – Funding of cost-sharing activities under the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) and for further contracting under the Water Bank Program(WBP) is being terminated, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced.

These two programs are among those selected after a review of federal programs to identify those of low priority that can be reduced or eliminated without serious economic consequences, This review was initiated as part of the effort to hold 1973 federal budget outlays to $250 billion.

The income supplements for farmers that have been provided by the REAP and WBP are no longer necessary, the Department said. Realized net farm income in 1972 will reach an all-time high of nearly $19 billion. In view of this, and because of the general acceptance and profitability of certain practices, it is believed farmers will continue to implement a significant number of them without supplemental income from the federal government.

The REAP concept was initiated in the 1930's to provide cost - sharing incentives to farmers to install soil and water conserving practices on their lands. The program was successful in demonstrating the value of conservath as good farming practice.

The Water Bank Program was initiated by recent legislation. Its aim of preserving wetlands for the preservation of waterfowl is desirable, Department officials said, but the program is considered unnecessary since the Department of the Interior administers similar programs to enhance and conserve migratory waterfowl habitat.

The Department will honor commitments made under the two programs through December 22, 1972. No request by producers for cost-sharing under REAP or for water bank Contracts will be approved after that Date.

Homemaker Hints

By Rebecca M. Johnson, Extension Agent

Are you properly nourished? Do you eat what you should? How much of each food group does your body require weekly? Lets' take a look at what you should be eating and what they do for you.

• • •

Fruits and vegetables make up one food group. Buy them when they're in season - the price is lower and the quality higher. Canned and frozen fruits and vegetables may fluctuate in price, too. Just before a new crop is processed the price may go down.

Compare cost per serving of fresh, forzen, canned, and dehydrated forms to see which is the best buy. A portion is ½ cup, or a portion usually served, such as an apple, banana, or potato.

Evaluate the condition of perishable fruits and vegetables and the storage facilities at home before deciding how much to buy. Be sure they are fresh, for limp or wilted vegetables have lost much of their vitamin C. If they're bruised they probably have lost vitamin A. also. Treat them gently and refrigerate as soon as possible.

Three or four servings of fruits and vegetables daily should meet the normal requirements. How does you family rate?

• • •

Meats and meat substitutes compose the group which is the most expensive to serve your family. Fortunately, low cost cuts and varieties have as much food value as more expensive ones.

Poultry (chicken, turkey, etc.) and eggs are usually economical sources of protein. A larger chicken or turkey is often a good buy because you get more meat in proportion to the bone. A whole chicken is less expensive than cut-up chicken, or that which is packaged by the piece.

Beans, peas, and nuts offer a good substitue for meat, though the quality isn't as good as that from animal sources.

Each family member should have at least two servings of meat or meat substitute daily. Does your family meet this requirement?

• • •

The milk group is one in which most adults fall down. Though fresh, whole milk seems expensive, you may use nonfat dry milk for about ½ the price and equal nutrition. Adults need two cups of milk daily, children and teenagers need 3 to 4 cups daily. Compare the approximate price of different forms of milk below: Fresh whole milk - 30c per qt. Fresh skim milk - 27c per qt. Nonfat dry milk - 10c per qt. Half fresh skim and half nonfat dry milk - 18.5c per quart. See how your milk bill could go down!

Amature Spiritual Singers Of Amherst, Sunday At 7:30 At Galilee

The Amature Spiritual Singers of Amherst, Va. will render all the music for the Three Way Sermon program soon sored at the Galilee Baptist Church this first Sunday evening at 7:30. The Reverends J. W. Paige, W. R. Jones and C. L. Elliott will be the guest speakers. The general public is invited to attend.

The annual church meeting of the Galilee Baptist Church will be held this Saturday evening at 7 p.m. All officers and members are asked to attend. The annual program of work will be adopted. The annual financial report will be made by the treasurer and the financial secretary.

Impressive services were held at the Galilee Baptist Church last Sunday. The pastor delivered an informative message. Music was rendered by the combined choir of the church. The entire service was rendered for the benefit of improving the community cemetery.

Mr. Samuel Gafford, son of Mrs. Mattie Gafford and Miss Catherine Ann Moorman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moorman of Lynchburg, Va. were married on New Years Day at the home of his mother at 4 p.m. The Rev. R. Q. Lawing performed the ceremony. Relatives and friends of both families witnessed the ceremonies. The newlyweds will make their home in Lynchburg, Va.

An overflow crowd from the Chestnut Grove Church attended the funeral services for their pastor, the late Rev. C. C. Arrington at the Peaceful Zion Baptist Church last Sunday evening at 2 p.m. The Chestnut Grove choir helped to furnish music. Resolutions were read from the Chestnut Grove Church. Deacon Floyd Daniels gave remarks concerning the work of Rev. Arrington. The pastor of the church delivered the eulogy. Fifteen or more ministers served as honorary pallbearers and several assisted in the service. The Rev.

Foods from the bread and cereal group are important in the diet because they supply food energy at relatively low price. Enriched bread products have niacin, riboflavin, thiamine, and iron added. You get more nutrients for your money if you select enriched or whole-grain products. Read the label, for Virginia law does not require enrichment.

Rice which is labeled parboiled or converted have been treated to retain the nutrients when the outer husks were removed. This is a better nutritional buy.

Everyone needs one serving of bread or cereal with each meal.

Be sure to read next week, for some tips on getting the most for your food dollar.

JORDAN BAPTIST

All present enjoyed our annual Christmas program on December 23. Our pageant for this season was entitled, "The Star Lighted Path".

ON the fourth Sunday morning Rev. Elliott preached a very timely and beautiful sermon.

The Junior Choir under the direction of Mrs. Penn furnished carols for our service. The church was decorated out side with wreathes given by the Youth Club and inside with Poinsettas given by Mrs. Martha Pankey. The flowers were later given to Mrs. Naomi Trent and Mrs. Willie Wheeler mother of our Church. Many of our elderly members were missed at services including Mrs. Wheeler, Deacon John Jones and Mr. Mathew Pankey.

The Gospel Harmonettes will practice Thursday, January 4, at 7:30 p. m. All members are asked to be present.
